

eBlueprint & CA Technologies Provide Utility Distributor with Ability to Equip their Mobile Engineers with Productivity through Boosting Apps with CA API Gateway

Challenge

An Australian-based utility distributor, delivering their services to over 1 million homes and businesses, serves a population just short of 2 million. They were confronted with the task of making their mobile workforce more efficient. The organisation needed a cost-effective and reliable way to integrate their back-end infrastructure with SaaS and mobile platforms.

Solution

The CA API Gateway allowed for the rapid build of workplace apps, deployment and support of vendor apps and the ability to integrate them with cloud-based services that rely on secure access to corporate assets.

eBlueprint's consultants successfully provided advice and implementation services to improve the security and operational aspects of the way the customer uses their CA API Gateway.

In addition, eBlueprint was able to help the utility provider with best practices in managing capacity, to address issues they were experiencing in this area and in solving other technical issues that they were faced with. The services contributed by eBlueprint ensured that the organisation received more value out of the investment they made in their technology.

eBlueprint was instrumental in assisting the customer with rebuilding robust security policies that were lost during a disaster recovery event. eBlueprint's consultants were also able to provide expertise to support the implementation of an improved design for a single sign-on for their mobile applications.

Result

Together with CA's API Gateway solution and the services provided by eBlueprint's skilled consultants, the customer's users are now more productive on the move. The solution has simplified management and security of APIs and accelerated time-to-market for new apps and cloud services.
